What's taking off in hair care

American Crew's 2006 collection, Citizen, is bold and free. Inspired by the beatnik culture of Kerouac, Ginsberg and Burroughs, it's loud in design, yet barely audible in tone. "Citizen speaks to a culture more focused on change than approval through the discipline of structure and design," says Craig Hanson, American Crew's creative director. "While remaining true to the passions of this movement, the result is a study in asymmetry and texture."
